

Integrating Theory, Research & Practice

NJOD Learning Day
November 13, 2014

Dr. Michael Horne
Dr. David W. Jamieson

Our Purpose

- Frame the Divides and suggest Bridges & Intersections Among Theory, Research & Practice
 - Prep today's various conversations
 - Focus attention on what we need to do as academics and practitioners

Reduce Some Confusion in the Theory-Practice Dilemma

So What are Theory, Research and Practice?

 Theory

 Research

 Practice

Various Roles Are Involved

In what ways are the roles more rigidly enacted? More fluid?

- Researcher
 - Scholar-contributes to literature and teaches
 - Change Practitioner
 - Accountable Manager/Client

What Are the Current Interests?

- What do we find in 3 different dissemination channels?
 - What captures your interest?
 - What do you trust?

Lewin' s Mantra

Nothing is so practical as a good theory

Research-Theory-Practice Continuum

The Theory-Practice Gap

Who Leads Whom?

- How much of what we do starts from theory or scholarship or from practice in the field?
 - Convergence of HR, OD & HRD
 - Polarity management
 - Appreciative Inquiry
 - Culture change
 - Team development
 - Employee engagement

Let's hear from you about your work in the theory-practice
gap

Small Group Activity

(discuss all or select as you wish)

- Pick an area of your practice. What theory informs your work?
 - How does your practice inform theory?
 - How do you stay current in your non-dominant role?
 - How have you adapted theory in practice?

An Example from Lawler

- His theory of high involvement management that leads to high performance-knowledge, information, power and rewards (Lawler, 1986)
 - Yet, in practice how difficult is it to get these conditions operating simultaneously!
 - A perfectly good theory for practice, yet..

Another involving Katzenbach

- What did he add to theory and how has it changed practice?

So What's Needed

- Understanding the drivers across these worlds and roles
 - Making the case for both research and practice contributing to theory
 - Our responsibility (as teachers, scholars, researchers and practitioners) to access each other and close divides

Understanding the Drivers

● Research

- Significant rigors
- Methodology and methods dominate
- Peer respect

● Scholarship

- Publication criteria
- Reviewer biases

● Practice

- Results
 - Practicality
 - Efficiency
 - Solves a problem

Understanding the Drivers

- Differing reward systems
 - Different audiences and peer groups
 - Different time horizons
 - Different needs for perfect & complete vs “good enough”

Research & Practice as Contributors to Theory

Practice

- Tests the applicability of theories
- Provides data for adaptability
- Accumulates experiences across cases of what actually works

Research

- Tries to include all relevant variables
 - Attempts to explain causality and influence
 - Works from specifics to generalizability
 - Basic and applied research

Closing the Divides

- The scholar-practitioner role
 - Living on the Bridge; developing boundary-spanners
 - Changing some dissemination channels
 - Go-to strategies for being informed across worlds
 - Aligning practice needs with academic research (eg, Engaged Scholarship); producing more useful research based on needs in the field; different tacit knowledge
 - More practitioner-led research on implementation
 - More education options to bridge theory & practice

LARGEST VIEW
